(b) The University of Primorska reimburses incurred expenses.

In the latter case, the following has to be observed:

7. Other conditions

The Erasmus+ interinstitutional agreement must be signed before the start of the mobility (staff exchange).

Both universities (the participant's sending institution and the University of Primorska as participant's hosting institution) have to confirm before the staff exchange the Mobility Agreement for Staff Mobility for Teaching or Mobility Agreement for Staff Mobility for Training defining the activities that will be carried out by the participant during the exchange period.

Agreement forms used under Erasmus+ are enclosed to this open call.

8. Application and selection process

Deadline for nomination of staff for mobility is 20 December 2016.

Home institution is responsible for nominating maximum 2 mobility candidates per mobility type (teaching and training) by providing the name(s) of the candidates to the host institution (either UP FAMNIT or UP TURISTICA depending on the field of work).

If more candidates will be nominated, as there are free places, the faculties of the University of Primorska will take the mobility programme into account and take the decision on the final list of candidates based on:

- Self-initiative of the candidate (staff who already established contact with the University of Primorska and obtained an invitation letter, will have advantage);
- Additionality (staff providing relevant content for the students of the University of Primorska in line with the study programme and internationalisation strategy, as confirmed by the host institution, will have advantage).

Before the start of their mobility the selected candidates will have to supply also the following information and documents:

- Permanent residence;
